Hopes for Steel Peace Grow As Negotiators Meet at Pittsburgh

SOME PRICE CUTTING NOTED IN INDUSTRY

Response to Truman Appeal Not General, However, Survey Shows.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 19—Price reductions in response to President Truman's appeal have been reported from many sections of the nation and on a wide variety of items in the last few days, Associated Press surveys showed today, but they have been far from general.

Their net effect on the cost of living index as reported by trade statisticians was slight, since they were largely local or sectional.

Among cuts which will directly and immediately affect the average consumer were:

Anthracite coal cut 60 cents a ton by dealers in Philadelphia, New York and New Jersey, a seasonal reduction for the summer months, following price cuts by four anthracite coal companies.

Soap prices cut "up to 10 per cent" by M. Werk Co. of Cincinnati.

Wholesale price of Crisco vegetable shortening cut by Procter Gamble Co.

Footwear price reductions were announced by the same Smith Shoe Corp of Newmarket, N. H., the Jaycee Footwear Co. of Brooklyn, and Elliot E. Simpson enterprises of Brooklyn, makers of non-leather solings. Various retail stores included shoes in the list of their price reductons.

Manufacturers and builders benefitted by price reductions announced by: the American Steel and Wire Co., U. S. Steel Corp. subsidiary, on wire rods, welded wire fabric and certain types of manufacturers wires; the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, a 5 per cent cut in asphalt prices for roofing and insulation;

Buffalo-Springfield Roller Co., on gasoline and diesel-powered road rollers; Gillespie Varnish Co., Jersey City, N. J., up to 25 per cent cut on some paints, varnishes and enamels; Sucrest Corp. of New York, 5 cents a hundredweight on bulk sugar for industrial use.

Colombian Hope Co. of Auburn, N. Y.; E. K. Wood Lumber Co. of Oakland, Calif., and Oregon Pulp and Paper Co. of Portland, both 10 per cent on all lumber products.

LIVING COST UP 2 PER CENT

WASHINGTON, April 19—The cost of living rose two per cent between mid-February and mid-March to a record high of 156 per cent of the 1935-1936 average, the bureau of labor statistics reported today.

M'MILLEN WORKERS ACCEPT CONTRACT

Union Approves Agreement by Unanimous Vote.

Members of the McMillen Feed unit of Local 750, UAW (CIO), meeting in the Steelworkers hall on East Center street last night, unanimously approved an amended contract set up by their executive committee and the company management.

Vote was 54 to 0 in favor of the amended contract, according to Edward Duck, international representative of the UAW. He said the contract would be signed by union and company officials within the next few days.

Principal issues of the new contract, as outlined by Mr. Duck, are as follows: a 22-cents' an hour cost-of-living increase retroactive to March 13 with a minimum pay rate of $1.12 an hour (excepting watchmen), and ranging up to $1.47 an hour; a maintenance of membership clause providing that all those who now are members of the union, or those who will become members, must remain in good standing for the duration of the contract:

A guarantee of a minimum of 4 hours of call-in pay for any day a worker is called in to work; one week's vacation with pay for workers with two year's seniority and two week's vacation with pay for workers with two years' seniority and six paid holidays during the year; double time after 11 hours and time and one-half after eight hours, time and one-half for Saturdays and double time for Sundays; a seven and one-half hour night premium for workers of the third shift; individual wage adjustments in certain classifications: job bidding provisions providing that all vacancies and promotions be posted and preference shown to those with seniority.

On Youth for Christ Mission

Above are Rev. Marvin Lewis, left, and Dr. C. E. Hershey, shown as they were about to leave on an American Airlines plane on the first leg of a missionary trip to Central and South America. They are co-directors of the Marion Youth for Christ and are making the southern tour in behalf of Youth for Christ International. Leaving from Port Columbus April 7, they planned to visit the capital cities of Mexico, Guatamala, San Salvador, Nicaragua, Panama, Ecuador, Venezuela, Haiti, and Cuba. At present they are at Boquete, Panama, where Miss Pearl Tuttle, Marion woman, is stationed as a missionary, and expect to be there until Saturday, Mrs. Hershey stated today. Dr. Hershey, pastor of Emmanuel Baptist church here, expects to be in Cincinnati Saturday, May 3, and to be back in Marion for his preaching services May 4. Rev. Lewis, evangelist with headquarters here until recently, has planned to extend his trip to Jamaica.

The purpose of the trip is to open up new Youth for Christ fields in countries not yet reached by the movement, and to include a "survey of missions in our neighboring countries with the aim of establishing greater harmony and a closer fellowship with our Latin American friends in Youth for Christ," Dr. Hershey explained in connection with his earlier annoucement of plans for the tour.

Red Cross Accepts Voluntary Gifts To Aid Texas City

The Marion County chapter of the American Red Cross is joining the more than 3,700 other chapters throughout the nation in accepting voluntary contributions for the relief of the Texas City disaster sufferers, it was announced today by Homer D. Cole, county chairman.

While no drive will be made, there are many who would like to contribute to the relief of the people in the stricken area, Mr. Cole points out. Anyone desiring to make a voluntary contribution may leave it at the chapter office at 133 West Center street.

Announcement that local chapters would accept contributions was made by Chairman Basil O'Connor, in a news release from national headquarters today. That is being done, the bulletin states, in response to many inquiries received from persons interested in supplementing the initial Red Cross appropriation of $250,000 to lessen the distress, even though many local chapters are still at work on their 1947 fund appeal.

Earlier Governor Beauford Jester of Texas formally placed the Red Cross in charge of relief in its role as the nation's official disaster relief agency. Mr. O'Connor explains, that in accordance with its traditional practices, the Red Cross is fully prepared to meet the relief needs of the disaster victims.

TO QUESTION MAN IN ROBBERIES HERE

Caught After Fleeing Circleville Holdup on Bicycle.

Circleville police were today holding a man who they say may have committed two recent holdup of taverns in Marion, the Associated Press reported.

He is William D. Scott, 20, of near Columbus. He pleaded innocent yesterday to a charge of holding up the Green Lantern, Circleville cafe, Wednesday night, and was bound over to the grand jury on $2,000 bond.

Circleville police said Scott has denied implication in the Marion holdups. Marion Police Captain E. C. Mackan and Tom Vlachos, bartender who was held up at the Spot restaurnt recently, left for Circleville today to question him.

Scott has admitted he was released recently on probation in Wyandot county after theft of a truck, according to Circleville authorities.

He is accused of robbing the Green Lantern of $37 after holding 20 patrons and two bartenders at bay with a pistol and then escaping on a bicycle.

Places robbed here within recent months of a total of about $900 are the Spot restaurant and Stag grill, both on West Center street, and the Red Apple Service Station and Grill at the junction of routes 23 and 4 just north of the city.

SMITH OPPOSES AMENDING BILL

Favors Outright Repeal of Wagner Act as Cure of Labor Ills.

Special to The Star

WASHINGTON, April 19—Before voting against the amendments to the Wagner Labor Act passed by the house Thursday, Congressman Frederick C. Smith of Marion in addressing the house, said the legislation amending the Wagner Labor Act on the surface presented some attractive features but when one goes into it exhaustively one finds them belying the underlying facts.

Cong. Smith said, "The Wagner Labor Relations Act and other so-called labor laws are the principal cause of most, if not nearly all, of the 'industrial strife' that prevails. The way to cure this trouble is not by amending those laws but repealing them. The real cause of strikes and the evils that go with them is the intrusion of the political forces controlling the government into the field of employer-employe relations. Unless and until the political element is taken out of this field, there can be no such thing as genuine industrial peace."

Says Power Misplaced

"The bill does take away from labor leaders much of the power they now hold," admitted the congressman. "That is fine," he added, "but what does the bill do with the power it takes away from the labor leaders? Does it give it back to the employers and employes to whom it legitimately belongs and from whom it was originally taken by the politicians through the Wagner and other acts and given over to union leaders? No; it vests the power it takes from the labor leaders in the politicians controlling the government who will use it primarily for their own aggrandizement. And here it should be noted that the course which this act pursues is precisely the same that was followed by Communist Russia, Nazi Germany, and Fascist Italy. This procedure was basic in their program of regimentation."

He said the bill provided for more politically managed labor relations and less union official management of such relations. And added, "It puts more politics into employer-employe relations." "It provides for another independent bureau in the executive branch of the government headed by an administrator appointed for life and removable only at the will of the President, who is vested with wide and sweeping dictatorial powers over both management and labor."

"This man will be empowered to arbitrarily determine which proceedings shall be instituted, how they shall be conducted, and what evidence shall be introduced, and there is no appeal from his decision in such matters," said Mr. Smith. "An appeal to the courts can be had from the decisions of the board but not from those of the administrator. Think of the serious implications that will be involved by vesting the administrator with the extraordinary power of representing both complainant and counterpart-plainant in a controversy between them. Since politics would in practically all cases be dominant, imagine what abuses and injustices would be forthcoming out of this arrangement."

WESTERN UNION STRIKE SET MAY 4 HALTED

Settlement Revealed as Phone Workers Ready Appeal to Truman.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 19—A nationwide walkout of Western Union telegraphers was averted today while the still striking telephone workers prepared to lay their case before President Truman and congress.

Under a tentative agreement announced early today in New York by union and management, 50,000 Western Union Telegraph Co. employes are to receive a 5-cent hourly wage hike and other benefits.

The AFL Commercial Telegraphers union had called a strike for May 4 in support of its demands, which included a 25-cent hourly pay increase.

Union officials said the agreement is subject to ratification by the CTU as well as by the Telegraph Workers union and the Telegraph Employes union, both AFL, which participated in negotiations.

Ronald W. Houghton, federal conciliator, said the agreement would "guarantee peace" for six months after April 1 after which the wage clause may be re-opened for further negotiation.

The telephone workers are hopeful that in presenting their case to Mr. Truman and congress they can smoke out a wage increase offer from the Bell system.

Joseph A. Beirne, president of the National Federation of Telephone Workers, said the maneuver will take the form of a memorandum during the day to Mr. Truman, the house and the senate citing the union's arguments for a general $12 weekly pay increase and nine other nationwide contract demands.

"No Counter-Offer"

He told reporters the Bell companies have failed to put forth a counter-offer on wages since the April 7 walkout made 340,000 workers idle. Beirne declared he could see no way to end the tieup without a pay boost.

The Bell companies have suggested arbitration of wages and other issues on an area-by-area basis, but the NFTW has insisted that any wage settlement must be nationwide.

Meanwhile the AFL Commercial Telegraphers union asked the government either to take over the Western Union Telegraph Co., where a CTU strike is set for May 4, or permit its merger with the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., parent of the Bell system.

Members of the 11-nation commission, now in Geneva, were expected to dispatch observers to the area immediately.

Rescue Workers Search Wreckage at Texas City

By The Associated Press

TEXAS CITY, Tex., April 19—Weary but dogged rescue workers in grotesque asbestos suits were ready at sunrise today to go back into the haunted ruins of the Monsanto plant for more victims of Wednesday's explosions.

Already the Red Cross has released a list of 580 dead in this blast-razed industrial gulf coast community. The Houston Chronicle said, however, the Red Cross conceded that there were a number of duplications on the list. Earlier, its total had been 542.

Last night Mayor J. C. Trahan appointed a three-member "dead body commission" to prevent unauthorized removal of victims.

Fires still burned in oil storage tanks, casting a gloomy pall of smoke over the area. The grim task of putting them out continued.

Also continued is the Coast Guard investigation, begun yesterday into the cause of the trigger-explosion aboard the Grandcamp, a French vessel that was loading nitrate when it blew up at 9:13 a. m. that fatal morning, taking much of the town with it.

2 Other Ships Sunk

In recurring explosions and fires, two other ships were sunk, the High Flyer and the Wilson B. Keene. The multi-million dollar Monsanto Chemical Corp. plant was destroyed with a heavy loss of life.

A member of the Coast Guard board yesterday said the cause of the explosion was "the sixty-four million dollar question" that may not be answered for years.

Memorial services for the dead will be held at 6 p. m. at the football field. All denominations are joining in the service.

The known dead totaled 542 after a check by The Associated Press and Houston Post eliminated seven seeming duplications from a list of 549 names issued by the American Red Cross.

Names listed by the Red Cross carried the notation "identified dead", but the Post stated the list should be considered tentative.

Dig Into Wreckage

Grotesque figures clad in asbestos suits dug grimly into smouldering wreckage last night in the ceaseless probe for bodies, working in the glare of still flaming oil tanks and powerful searchlights.

Heavy smoke boiled skyward and hung over the city from fires started Wednesday morning when the nitrate-laden French freighter Grandcamp exploded, setting off a chain of explosions that destroyed three ships, leveled a multi-million dollar chemical plant and left Texas City in shambles.

Rescue workmen entered the Monsanto Chemical Corp. plant, still burning and with some parts inaccessible. About 35 bodies were removed from the plant. The exact number of the dead brought out was difficult to ascertain. Many of the bodies were in pieces.

Mass burial will be conducted by the ministerial alliance of the blast-torn town sometime next week.

A slip in the Texas City bay yielded seven bodies yesterday to E. W. Mayr, of Houston, and Dutch Gilbert. Mayr said he believed only two of the bodies could be identified.

Morgue Holds 295

An improvised morgue held 295 bodies, the Red Cross said yesterday at 4 p. m., with the procession of corpses to places in long, blanket-covered lines proceeding steadily.

The mayor did not say how many bodies were thus removed.

The slow process of recovery was made more arduous by the mangled condition of the bodies.

"I've been bringing out the pieces all day," said John A. Rios, a Galveston longshoremen, "I guess they add up to about two people. Anything could be worse than this."

William C. Barnard, an Associated Press reporter, probed a restricted area in the wreckage of Monsanto's huge plastics building. He said:

"Smoke and flame heretofore had kept rescuers away from the ruined plastics building. A part of it still stood, a gutted, smoking torn framework, but the greater part of the six-story building was just a mountain of rubble and twisted steel."

201 Employes Missing

A statement by Monsanto officials at St. Louis said that 201 of its employes are missing or "unreported and believed to be dead."

Three oil tank fires blazed defiantly late last night, and a number of smaller fires continued to burn. The heavy, black smoke deepened the gloom of this already dazed, tired little city, once a great congregation of industry and 15,000 population.

Rumors which persisted yesterday that some survivors had been found beneath the mountain of wreckage that was the Monsanto plant were unsubstantiated. Deputy Mayor John Hill said he had not "heard of anybody being brought out alive, but "I hope to God they will."

At the Coast Guard investigation hearing yesterday, a customs agent testified there were 16 cases of ammunition aboard the Grandcamp. William T. Butler, technical advisor to the board headed by Rear Admiral Gordon T. Pilsbury, said such ammunition was not considered dangerous except although others, which also were aboard, were dangerous.

TWO KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK

At Least 21 Others Hurt in Smashup Near Champaign, Ill.

By The Associated Press

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., April 19—At least two persons were killed and more than 21 injured today when the Illinois Central Railroad's City of Miami, seven-car, all-steel streamliner bound from Chicago to Miami, was derailed near here today.

The Burnham city hospital reported the train's conductor, Charles Redus, 70, of Centralia, Ill., was killed in the wreck, and Dr. C. S. Buncher of the hospital staff said another man was pinned under the wreckage and was believed dead.

The railroad's Chicago office said C. W. Woods, the baggageman, was killed.

At least 15 injured passengers were brought into Burnham hospital which reported others were "still coming."

The train, which left Chicago at 9 a. m., for Miami was scheduled to make a stop here at 11:05 a. m. The derailment occurred shortly before 11 a. m. and railroad headquarters in Chicago said the speed presumably was cut down at that point—three and a half miles from Champaign.

The engine and baggage car left the rails and turned over. The remaining cars left the rails but remained upright. Traffic on the road's two main lines was blocked.

The railroad sent out a call for all available ambulances and hospitals in the vicinity were alerted. The first injured were brought to Burnham city hospital.

Cause of the derailment was not learned, immediately.

A railroad agent at Thomasboro, near the scene, said the engineer and fireman were removed from the locomotive with "slight bruises."

Big Four To Take Up Frontiers of Austria

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, April 19—The Big Four foreign ministers agreed today at the demand of Secretary of State George C. Marshall to take up the problem of Austria's frontiers tonight.

This involved chiefly Yugoslavia's demand for southern Carinthia. Russia has favored and the western powers have opposed this demand.

Greatest Lightweight of All, Benny Leonard, Dies in Ring

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 19—Little Benny Leonard, the greatest lightweight of them all, came to the end of the trail last night—just as you would expect him to—in a fight ring, with the smell of rosin in his nostrils and the slide of the canvas under his black boxing shoes.

The smooth little fighting machine from uptown, who retired undefeated as king of the lightweights in 1924 after just about fighting himself out of opponents during a seven-year reign, died while refereeing a fight in St. Nicholas arena. This was the Neighborhood club on 66th street, just off Broadway, where he'd put on some of his own classy clouting exhibitions in his heyday.

All Over in Minutes

It was all over in minutes for the 51-year-old master of the ring who was so perfect a performer that men close to him still talk how, on a dozen occasions, he named the round in which he would put an opponent away—and then did it just as he'd "called the shot."

He had refereed the entire St. Nick's card, as referee do in the small clubs, and finished handling the main bout in which Eddie

Two minutes of their first round went by. Suddenly, Benny staggered into the ropes. He fell, face forward, with such force that later a bruise was found on his forehead. The old ring hasbeen would have been with him for that, because almost as the fall was

ASHLEY DRIVER DIES IN CRASH

Ray Dildine Killed When Auto, Truck Meet in Head-on Collision.

Special to The Star

ASHLEY, April 19—Ray Dildine, 54, of Ashley, was killed instantly about 12:30 a. m. today when the automobile he was driving collided headon with a truck on route 42 approximately one-fourth of a mile south of Ashley.

Dildine was traveling north and a truck, owned by J. C. Carper and driven by Arden Landon, 27, of near Ashley was traveling south when the accident occurred, according to the state highway patrol. Both vehicles were badly damaged. Landon was not injured. The crash occurred on a straight and level stretch of highway, patrolmen said.

The body of Mr. Dildine was taken to the C. R. Lee funeral home in Ashley by the Lee ambulance. Funeral arrangements are pending.

He is survived by his widow, Gladys; three daughters, Mrs. Madeline Lee of Ashley; Mrs. Betty Hepner of Delaware and Mrs. Mary Miller of Marion; two sons, Dale and Charles of near Ashley; one brother, Charles, of north of Ashley, and a sister, Mrs. Theron Potter of Leonardsburg.

He was employed by Robert Hall in the plumbing business and was believed to have been on his way home when the collision occurred.

MT. GILEAD WESTERN UNION HEARING SET

Proposed End of Service To Be Considered May 14.

Special to The Star

MT. GILEAD, April 19—Representatives of the federal communications commission are scheduled to meet with Western Union officials here May 14 for a hearing on the proposed closing of the Mt. Gilead Western Union offices and those in five other Ohio communities, including Marysville.

All interested persons may attend the hearing. The FCC has not announced where the hearing will be conducted but has advised local officials that in all probability it will be at the Morrow county courthouse or the postoffice.

T. E. Deisler, manager of the local telegraph office, announced this week that he had accepted a position as manager of the Galion office effective on or about April 23. His statement follows:

"Due to the uncertainty of the retention of the local Western Union office, I have accepted the Galion, O. Western Union managership, replacing Miss Laura Shuler, who has retired."

Deisler has been an employe of Western Union 28 years. He came to Mt. Gilead April 1, 1936 from Steubenville where he was night manager.

MURRAY, FIRM HEAD HUDDLE OVER TERMS

CIO Postpones Own Strategy Parley as Conference Continues.

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, April 19 — A meeting of the United Steel Workers' policy makers today was postponed until tomorrow while CIO President Philip Murray and Vice President John Stevens of the U. S. Steel Corp. continued contract discussions which began yesterday.

The meeting of the union's executive board was deferred as regional presidents were getting together for a session originally set for 10 a. m. today.

The action raised the possibility that the talks between Murray and Stevens might produce a concrete wage offer or plan for agreement on the questions between the country's largest basic industry union and the steel corporation.

No Official Explanation

There was no official explanation of the postponement. One union spokesman commented "anything the executive committee has to do can be done tomorrow just as well as today."

Any decisions made by the executive committee are expected to go a long way toward determining the future of steel production for another year.

The purpose of the executive committee meeting is to pass on the results of the collective bargaining negotiations which have been under way for weeks.

Most speculation centers around a reported wage increase offer, amount unspecified, which the trade journal, Iron Age, said was made to the union by U. S. Steel, bellwether of the industry. No confirmation of such an offer was obtainable from tight-lipped company and union officials. The union has never disclosed its wage demands.

Three Results Possible

Possible results of current union sessions could be: 1 — A wage settlement; 2 — A new contract extension, or 3 — A strike call after April 30, expiration date of the present pact between the union and five major big steel subsidiaries.

With negotiations between big steel and the steel workers currently at a standstill, a 23-cent an hour wage boost demand was sent by the union to the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corp., fourth largest producer. No union official would say that figure was also presented to big steel but it appeared much more to the liking of the union than a 15 cents an hour increase offered and accepted in other industries.

Settle for 15 Cents

The CIO-United Auto Workers have made a 23 cent wage boost demand on General Motors Corp., but the CIO-United Electrical Workers have settled for a 15-cent raise for 30,000 workermembers in the General Motors plants and for 75,000 members employed by the Westinghouse Electric Corp. The auto workers called "unsatisfactory" a 15-cent offer made by General motors

Yesterday, Philip Murray, president of both the CIO and the Steel Workers, conferred at length with Walter Reuther, president of the Auto Workers, and other top CIO officials but the results of their conference were not made public. A UAW spokesman had said it was expected to coordinate CIO policies.

Reuther said he plans to resume negotiations with General Motors in Detroit Monday.

Marion Major's British Bride Finds That His Home Town Is O.K.—They Get an Apartment!

By ARTHUR B. MYERS

A new member of Marion's war bride colony arrived here this week. She is the wife of Major Earl W. Camp, the former Kathleen M. Nash of London, England. Major Camp is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl J. Camp of 286 Oak street.

The Camps arrived in the United States from England a few days ago. Major Camp came by air and beat his wife's voyage time by several days. She came aboard a ship chartered for war brides and others and got into New York after nine stormy days.

Major Camp has already proved to his bride that nothing is impossible in America—he has an apartment! Major Camp gives all the credit to his mother for the achievement. He thinks perhaps she thawed some landlord's heart with the tale of a girl in a strange land.

At present the Camps are staying with the major's sister at 186 North Seffner street, but they plan to move into their apartment in a few days. He will go off active duty with the Army April 29 and plans to go back to his pre-war job at the postoffice.

Entered Service As Private

He entered the Army in December 1941 as a private, was assigned to Army postal work, and eventually became postal officer of the Eighth Air Force.

He met his wife in London, where he was stationed in November 1943. She was working in the British postoffice, where she has been employed for 12 years.

Later she was hired by the American OWI and worked in France and Germany. Major Camp was also transferred to the continent and stationed in various countries.

They were married near London last March 21.

Amazed by Food Supply

Mrs. Camp knows the war bride's usual surprise at the amount of food available here.

"It's not just that there's so much, it's of such good quality," she says. "The milk here seems like her to the cream she got in England. She still has trouble passing a store with nylons in the window."

Major Camp although a native, has been abroad so long he too is impressed with the abundance here. Army food, although plentiful, is not as fresh or varied as civilian food, he says.

Finds New York Dazzling

Mrs. Camp was greatly impressed with the New York skyline. "It's what everybody has cracked it up to be," she declared. The city itself was bewildering to her, and two days of it was enough.

After being in London, Paris, New York and other large cities, the Camps say they are glad to settle in a small town and live a quiet life.

Major Camp was graduated from Harding High school in 1928.

The county's share of the total is $54,324.36 and the city's share, $15,922.50, the county auditor said. Distribution to other municipalities in the county will be as follows: Caledonia, $325.50; Green Camp, $190.50; LaRue, $375; Morral, $283.50; New Bloomington, $75; Prospect, $600 and Waldo, $255. School Buses Run 1,883 Miles Daily

Marion county's 53 rural school buses travel a total of 1,883.1 miles a day and carry 1,930 pupils, according to a transportation survey made recently by the office of D. T. Mills, county superintendent of schools.

The survey shows the county schools transportation costs are $89,518 a year. Annual cost for each pupil transported is $36.02. The average cost for each mile is 20.5 cents and the total distance traveled by the 53 buses each year is 338,958 miles.

Daily cost of bus operation in the county is $386.21 and daily cost for each pupil is 20 cents. The figures are based on a 180-day school year, school officials said. They reported Marion county's school transportation costs compare favorably with those of other rural communities.

Grants To Vet Groups Scored

State Representative Believes Money from Ohio Is Undeserved.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, April 19—A state legislator contended today that 10 Ohio veterans' organizations were ticketed for about $386,000 in "undeserved" appropriations in the 1947-48 budget, but an American Legion official said the Ohio representative should "seek more information about veterans."

Opposing further appropriations to veterans groups on the basis of what he said represented a month's research was Rep. Kenneth W. Thornton (R-Cuyahoga), a newcomer this year to the state house.

Thornton said yesterday in an interview:

"I've been investigating this business of paying out money to veterans groups for about a month now. And I can't see why they are more deserving of state funds than any other corporation.

"Why Not Others?"

"If they rate money, then why not give appropriations to the Rotary clubs, the Y.M.C.A., the Lions clubs, the Elks? They're doing just as fine a job in their own way as the veterans organizations."

Thornton's complaint, however, drew quick replies from officials of two powerful veterans groups—the American Legion and the Disabled American Veterans — and State Finance Director Herbert Defenbacher said grants had been paid nine of the groups by legislation adopted "at least 16 years ago."

"Mr. Thornton should seek information from persons acquainted with veteran affairs," said Joseph S. Deutschle, adjutant for the Ohio department, American Legion, at Columbus.

Spent On Claims

"The money used from appropriations to the Legion are spent on pressing veterans claims with the veterans administration in its offices at Cleveland, Cincinnati and Columbus. If the Legion didn't prosecute those claims, then the state of Ohio would be obliged to do so."

A similar defense of veterans appropriations was made by Cicero F. Hogan, assistant national adjutant of the Disabled Veterans. He declared at Cincinnati:

"The state of Ohio in securing this assistance is bringing into the state hundreds and hundreds of thousands of dollars which would not be paid to these veterans were they not represented, aided and counseled by trained service officer x x x."

MISS NORMA KATHARINE BECKER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold P. Becker of Detroit, became the bride of John Emerson Gracely, son of Mr. and Mrs Harvey T. Gracely of 331 East Church street, Saturday evening, April 12, in Bushnell Congregational Church in Detroit. The families and close friends of the bride and bridegroom were present for the ceremony, read at 8:30 o'clock by Dr. Roger Eddy Treat.

Two large bouquets of white gladioli, and greenery adorned the altar and the only light in the New England Colonial styled church was from tapers in four seven-branched candelabra to the back of the chancel and the triple candles in the tall narrow windows. Preceding the ceremony Mrs. William Lawrence of New London, O., played a program of organ music and and Mrs. Carl J. Vogt of Findlay, sorority sister of the bride, sang. Mrs. Vogt sang, "Through the Years," Youmans, and "Always," Berlin, and the organ numbers included "In the Garden of Tomorrow," Deppen, "The Rosary," Nevin, "Bells of St. Mary's," Furber-Adams, "Because," D'Hardelot, "Romance," Rubenstein, "O, Promise Me," DeKoven, "I Love You Truly," Bond, "Sweetest Story Ever Told," Stultz and the Alpha Xi Sweetheart song. After the couple had repeated their vows Mrs. Vogt sang "The Lord's Prayer," Malotte, and for the processional and recessional the traditional wedding marches were played.

A gown of candlelight slipper satin was worn by the bride, who was given in marriage by her father. The fitted bodice had a sweetheart neckline, cathedral sleeves and the only trim was a design of seed pearls. Her two-tiered veil of silk illusion, one fingertip in length and the other extending the full length of her train, was edged with applique lace and held with a coronet of seed pearls. Her bridal bouquet, centered with an orchid, was of white roses and strung hyacinths showered with tulle.

Miss Bernice E. Becker, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Louise Gracely of Marion, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Nancy Rowell of Dayton, a sorority sister. They wore gowns of ice blue faille with matching mitts and flower headdress matching their bouquets. Miss Becker's flowers were roses in a deep rose shade and strung hyacinths in the same color and the bridesmaids' flowers were identical only in light pink shades. Sandra Ford of Detroit, in a light blue faille gown made like those of the attendants, was the flower girl. She carried a miniature bridal bouquet of sweetheart rosebuds and wore rosebuds in her hair.

William H. Gracely, brother of the bridegroom, was the best man and the guests were seated by Rayl B. Conyers, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, John C. Robers of Marion, Mark Ford, cousin of the bride and Fred Dunlap of Detroit.

The candles were lighted by Mrs. Rayl B. Conyers, sister of the bridegroom, of Marion, and Miss Shirley Crooks of Buffalo, N. Y., sorority sister of the bride.

The bride's mother was costumed in a rose crepe gown with gold accessories and Mrs. Gracely chose a Modana blue Cohama crepe accented with silver. Both wore orchid corsages.

The wedding reception was held at Botsford tavern. Presiding at the table were Mrs. Conyers, Miss Crooks, Miss Ethel Gray and Mrs. John Sieberth of Detroit. The tables at which the guests were seated held bouquets of white Japanese Iris and pink snapdragons.

When the couple left on a wedding trip through the south the bride was wearing a gray gabardine suit fashioned with a peplum and alligator accessories. Upon their return they will make their home at 340 Mt. Vernon avenue.

The bride was graduated from Redford High school in Detroit in 1942 and from Ohio Wesleyan university, Delaware in 1946. She is a member of Alpha Xi Delta sorority. C. and was assigned to the engineering department of the assembly and repair division of the Naval Air station at Corpus Christi, Tex. He was discharged from service in October, 1945.

FIGHT AGAINST MILK SURPLUS LAUNCHED

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O, April 19 — Ohio's milk producers today launched an advertising and promotion campaign aimed at combating possible surpluses.

The Ohio members of the American Dairy association said they would contribute to a national plan to spend $5,000,000 during the next three years, principally on advertising in national magazines, billboards, and newspapers.

A voluntary deduction of one cent a pound on butterfat delivered at dairy plants between June 1 and 15 would be the Ohio contribution to the broad campaign. Ohio members said they felt that the average cooperating farmer would donate about $1 to the fund and said they hoped that $40,000 to $50,000 would be realized.

Latest group to join the deduction program, first launched in 1940, the association heard an address yesterday by Owen M. Richards of Chicago, national general manager, who said that current high prices for dairy products were justified.

"We make no apology for 75 or 80-cent butter," Richards asserted, adding, "we make no apology for 65-cent cheese x x x or 20 or 25-cent milk. If the public knew how much it was getting for these prices, it wouldn't complain."

Richards said that when milk formerly was 10-cents a quart, the dairy industry paid 40-cents-an-hour wages.

"But everything has moved up now," he declared.

New officials of the Ohio association made yesterday were M. R. Moomaw of Canton, president; V. O. Dreyer of Dayton, vice president and L. C Mapp of Dayton, secretary-treasurer.

DEMONSTRATION OF SOIL AERATION SET TUESDAY

Aeration Device To Be Used Near Cardington.

A demonstration in soil aeration, designed to break up the hard pan and add moisture to the soil, will be given on the M. L. Wrenn farm four miles south of Cardington beginning next Tuesday and running through the remainder of the week.

The demonstration will be conducted by Edwin G. Scott, engineer of Ashland, on 70 acres of farm land which will be planted to crops this spring. The aeration process consists of pulling a large tool beneath the surface of the soil, causing the soil to be loosened. The implement, which Mr Scott calls a "mole," penetrates the soil to a depth of as much as 36 inches, although it will be used at a depth of 14 inches on the Wrenn farm.

Mr. Scott claims no plowing is needed where the aeration process is used, and he estimates use of the implement will store up the equivalent of one inch of rainfall an acre in a 24-hour period.

Farmers from Marion and adjoining counties are invited to witness the demonstration.

Congressional Elegance Makes So and So Five Dollar Phrase

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press Writer

...NGTON, April 19—It's ... here when congress ... coming to see how ... e people—meaning con... can be to people—... congressmen—they don't ... ve some bad minutes. ... But they try to keep ... on a ... plane ... con... gets ... another ... man—it' ... the ... doesn't ... say ... you ... up ... don't ... you're ... like a ...

James Marlow

... e may be mad enough to ... ck off the other man ... allows hard and comes ... omething like "Isn't the distinguished gentleman from Pennsylvania aware . . . ?"

Never Use Names

Calling a man a name—or by his right name—is the wrong thing to do in the best congressional circles on the floor

(What congressmen may call one another off the floor and out of sight doesn't get into the record).

Even in hot argument, a congressman is always referred to as the "gentleman from such-and-such a state '

In short A congressman never seems to talk directly to another congressman. He speaks to him in the third person. For example.

A congressman never says 'do you think so?' instead, he says 'Does the esteemed gentleman from M ssouri think so?'

The senators are even more polite to one another than the representatives, if that's possible

Wraps Brick In Bouquet

When one senator wants to beat another over the head, he wraps the brick in a pretty bouquet and starts out

'I'm quite sure the gracious and eloquent senator from so-and-so state . . ."

Then he tears into his quarry, always in the third person, of course, as if he were talking about someone who wasn't there

The senators seem to be a lot more careful to stay out of cat fights than the representatives.

Sometimes in the house a congressman blows his top, cutting loose with language against another member that raises all the members hair

When that happens, the speaker can order the remarks stricken from the record and tell the offender he can't talk for the rest of the day

That's like telling him to go stand in the corner with his hands on his head for being a bad boy

Smart Tip about a Prize Package!

LET'S square up to the facts, just for a minute.

It's plain there's no smarter-looking car than a Buick — either on the road today or coming very soon.

It's clear that these long, clean lines, these sweeping, follow-through fenders, are no mere passing fancy but a solid style trend for years to come.

You can scour the town — and not find livelier, silkier, more abundantly ready power than's on tap in this big Fireball straight-eight engine.

You can check this husky on the roads — and find that nothing on wheels makes the bad ones behave like Buick's feathery coil springing on all four wheels.

See how taut and weave-proof and quiet the Silent Zone mounted bodies are. Look at the solidity and strength in husky frames, stout axles, the whole "business" side of this beauty.

Put your wife behind the wheel to test its ease of handling, and the quick, sure action of brakes and gearshift. Size up the room of three-person seats, the comfort of deep cushions, the stability that only ample roadweight can give.

Clearly, here's a prize package of such proportions it's bound to find fresh "takers" as fast as deliveries can be made. Here's a car that's certain to sell on a first-come-first-served basis for a long while to come.

So what's gained by delay in getting your name down for one? Aren't you better off waiting for a Buick, than wishing you'd ordered one?

Your own good sense gives you the answer. Take our tip and get your order in now.

Uncle Sam's Britches

THE BITTER opposition of union leaders helped produce the strong labor law revision bill which the house of representatives passed.

The senate bill on the same subject may be milder, but the version which finally will come out of conference is certain to be full of teeth and claws. Furthermore, unless circumstances change suddenly, such a bill is almost certain to be repassed over a presidential veto. There is even the possibility now that a presidential veto won't be forthcoming.

Neither congress nor the executive department is in any mood to be conciliatory toward union leaders who openly defy the right of government to touch any of the claimed rights of unionism. This has ceased to be an issue about legislation and has turned into a showdown over rights.

If union leaders had set out deliberately to convince the 80th congress and the Truman administration that the welfare of the United States was perfectly close to being at the whimsical mercy of a handful of men, they couldn't have done a better job than they've done since the end of the war.

We don't know whether the house bill as passed is adequate or not; much depends on the way any law of that kind is administered. As a matter of fact, if the national labor relations law had been administered with less attention to promoting the interests of certain minorities and more attention to general welfare, there wouldn't need to be any labor law revision at all.

We do know this: The issue of the people's right to have remedial legislation in the field of labor unionism was challenged brazenly by the unions' spokesmen and the house either had to vote out a strong bill or admit it was licked.

The executive branch of the government has been struggling to reassert its authority over John L. Lewis, who has illusions of being several sizes bigger than the United States. The legislative branch is now struggling to reassert its authority over all the other John Lewises with the same illusion.

The basic rights of labor unions are well-established. The argument now is not about basic rights of unions but the basic rights of the people, through their government, to control unions. The big job in 1947 is to establish the fact the unions are not too big for Uncle Sam's britches. Details will have to be worked out later, just as they were worked out after it was established in 1890 that the government had the right to control business enterprise. The Sherman Antitrust Act was only the beginning.

Hindsight

THE DISASTER at Texas City makes one ponder the hazards that exist wherever men set up a community.

Such hazards are everywhere but often they aren't obvious until after tragedy has occurred. Reasons for the Coconut Grove night club holocaust were apparent after the fire had taken 491 lives. Until the Collinwood school fire in Cleveland revealed the danger, hundreds of school buildings had doors opening inward.

Texas City residents probably never realized they were living on a powder keg, even though the vast chemical installations and the presence of explosive-laden ships in the bay made the district more dangerous than an ammunition depot.

Plans for rebuilding Texas City should be based on the fact that chemical plants are not for urban districts. The more remote they are the better.

Counselor Byrnes

ANNOUNCEMENT that James F. Byrnes is entering private law practice recalls the quip that made the rounds when he resigned in January as secretary of state. A wiseacre questioned whether he was just plain sick, as was announced, or sick of the Russians.

Whatever his reason for resigning, Mr. Byrnes had a thankless task sparring with the Russians and did about as well as anyone could. After a round of negotiations with the enigmatic Muscovites, a man might feel as if he had been trying to string beads while wearing boxing gloves.

In government posts of great responsibility, Mr. Byrnes has given generously of his time. With his legal and diplomatic background, he should find private law practice simple by comparison.

Sitters, Arise!

IN THIS age of specialization, Pennsylvania is considering bonding and licensing baby-sitters. What is the measure of a proficient baby-sitter? A knowledge of formulas and an intuitive insight into whether to change or not to change? Enough know-how to turn down the radio after 9 o'clock?

With the licensing of baby-sitters, the next step will be their organization and establishment of a standard wage and working conditions. If negotiations are deadlocked, of course, the headlines will read, "Baby-Sitters on Standup Strike."

The Cost of Empire

By RAYMOND MOLEY

America's "Imperial Adventure" Is Different.

MOST of our exports in the next few years will go as gifts or on highly uncertain credit. We cannot expect substantial returns for years, if ever. Our exports will go to sustain the shaky economies of Germany, Austria, Japan, Italy, Greece, Turkey, the Philippines, China, Korea and other countries. The total for the next three years will be more than $20 billion.

This is part of the cost of our expanding policy of recapitalizing the world. The Truman administration believes that we shall not only get our money's worth in general world security, but that we shall receive material returns in trade with the reviving nations we have helped. The latter assumption rests more on hope than on fact. But we may all join in the hope that Washington optimists are right.

They may be right, if we can maintain something like our present rate of economic activity. For only if we retain high level of buying power can we buy the future products of reviving nations abroad.

Previous High Mark

The nearest we have come to this new program of exporting capital was in those years of past prosperity, 1925-1929. Our national income then averaged about $75 billion. We sent abroad, in those years, $7 billion in all, or an average of about $1.5 billion a year. This was about 2 per cent of our national income. A good deal of this was lost, and that loss deepened the depression which began in 1929.

Our annual national income is now $175 billion. Our prospective loans and gifts amount to 4 per cent of our income. That is twice the proportion of the 20's. If our level of business activity drops off, the proportions of course, will rise. No one knows how high this percentage can go without creating an intolerable strain. Moreover, we should realize that, as the strain of keeping up foreign commitments increases, the home demands on the budget will increase too. The moment that unemployment increases, we shall need more money for deferred public works and for unemployment benefits.

It will be inevitable that the exact nature of disbursements abroad will be analyzed. A billion dollars loaned to Greece, Italy and France will, for the most part, be spent here. That means that about 400,000 workers will be employed for wages. But the net wealth produced by these workers will not increase the real wealth of the United States. It will increase the wealth of the beneficiary countries.

There's a Difference

Our imperial venture is not like those which have flourished in the past. Rome and Britain drew wealth back from their dependencies. What England invested in Canada and India flowed back many-fold to the British Isles. We contemplate no such sordid return on our outlays. The Roman and British empires supported the home lands. With us, the homeland supports the empire.

In the face of this fact, prudence should dictate two courses. One is to try in every way to reach agreement with Russia concerning the limitations of her influence. Another is to project some sort of inventory of American resources and obligations. The latter has been repeatedly suggested by Bernard Baruch and was recently urged by Senator Byrd. Our power has limits, and we should know what those limits are.

A Quiet Year for the Dodgers

The nation is rounding out its first week of Durocherless baseball and seems to be bearing up remarkably well.

This comes as consolation to citizens who were beginning to wonder if maybe, after all, there were such things as indispensable men.

There is, to be sure, mourning in Flatbush. A tree grows in Brooklyn and, if Dodger fans had their way, Happy Chandler would be hanging from the highest limb.

Happy threw the book at Durocher in the greatest reversal of form since Goliath went down for the count. Lip never expected, when he married Loraine, that the commissioner would give him a whole year for the honeymoon.

Of course, if Leo gets restless before the year is up, the little woman can probably get him in the movies. Hollywood, always on the lookout for something new, might go for the idea of squawking pictures.

They could put him in a musical and let him paraphrase Durante's themesong "I can do without baseball. But can baseball do without me?"

As if there's anyone this side of Ebbets Field who isn't willing to try.

Reaction Against Labor

By WALTER LIPPMANN

THE vote in the house on the Hartley bill is a spectacular demonstration of the depth and extent of the reaction against organized labor.

The intention of the bill is to outlaw all the big weapons of the labor unions—industry-wide bargaining, the secondary boycott, the checkoff, sympathetic strikes, the closed shop, mass picketing, the picketing of the homes of nonstrikers, sitdown strikes, featherbedding, immunity under the Sherman act, the right to spend money in politics, secrecy of union funds and many special privileges under the Wagner act.

The bill also intends to rearm employers with many weapons, for example the injunction, which have been taken away from them.

The bill does not attempt to disguise its purpose, which is to reduce drastically the power of organized labor to bargain collectively. Though the bill does not prohibit collective bargaining, it is meant to deprive the unions of a very considerable part of their power when they bargain collectively.

The bill passed the house by a vote of nearly 3 to 1. The Republicans voted for it nearly 10 to 1; among the Democrats there was a majority in favor of it.

No doubt not all the supporters of the bill have read and understood the whole 66 pages on which it is printed, and many, we may be sure, who do understand it were recording their general feeling, leaving it to the senate and the President to work out a bill that can actually become law and can be enforced.

Representative Attitude

Nevertheless, the action of the house is a fact of great importance, and there is no ground for thinking that it does not represent correctly the feeling, though probably not the informed and considered judgment, of that majority of the people who are not closely connected with organized labor.

To understand this great reaction against organized unionism, we must remember it was generated in the period of the war and immediately after when the demand for labor far exceeded the supply.

When this congress was elected in 1946 there was not only no unemployment, except for those changing jobs or not willing to take jobs, but there was more than full employment. There was over-employment.

Labor was operating in what was for it a seller's market, and that, much more than the legal privileges of the Wagner act and the New Deal, gave organized and also unorganized labor their unprecedented bargaining powers. The legal privileges helped. But in a period of large unemployment, they could not have been exercised so effectively as they were.

These legal privileges, we must remember, were enacted—also by impressive congressional majorities—after the depression of 1929 and in the '30s, when the reservoir of unemployed workers was never less than about 8,000,000. They were approved by the general sentiment of the country, which disregarded the details as in reverse it does now, because then the employers were operating in a buyer's market and congress legislated to right the balance.

Secondary Effect

As a matter of fact neither the legislation in favor of the unions in the '30s nor the legislation against them now has a more than secondary effect.

The controlling condition is the volume of employment—whether the demand for labor is more than or less than the supply. In a period of unemployment, labor unions, except perhaps those which have a tight monopoly of special skill, will be weak, and the general sentiment of the country and its politicians will be prolabor and in favor of reform, improvements and a new deal.

In a period like the one of war employment and postwar inflationary demands for goods and services, labor will be strong, unions will use to the full and abuse frequently their power and the temper of the country will be antilabor and conservative and reactionary.

Labor legislation will reflect, rather than control, the phases of the economic cycle. It was not the Wagner act but the reflationary measures of the New Deal, and then above all the gigantic war expenditures, which raised labor from the abyss of 1929 to the height of power which it had attained by 1946. It will not be the labor legislation of the congress but the probable decline of employment which will chance labor relations once again.

There is an underlying problem here, for which no solution is known, which is at the heart of the industrial problem throughout the world and which it would be much more agreeable to ignore. It is, to put it bluntly, whether it is possible to combine high productivity with free labor and full employment. This is the riddle of the sphinx to which no modern society has found the answer.

The most powerful criticism of the capitalist system made by Karl Marx was that it did not operate without the pressure of what he called the industrial reserve army, that is a large mass of unemployed, upon those who were employed.

The threat of unemployment, he said, was what moved men to accept jobs and to do them under the discipline of the employer and at the wages he was willing and able to offter them. The strongest argument for Socialism was that this compulsion would disappear because unemployment would disappear.

In the '30s, while capitalist countries like Britain and America were suffering from unemployment, the whole world was impressed by the fact that collectivist countries like Germany and Russia had solved the problem of unemployment.

But contrary to the implied promises of Marx, the abolition of unemployment was accompanied by the regimentation of labor. The compulsion of unemployment was replaced by the conscription of labor, the whip of poverty by the whip of police.

Socialism in Russia achieved full employment and substantial production, but labor was no longer free.

These countries, we say, are not democracies and have never known freedom. Therefore the world will watch Great Britain anxiously. For there, under the Labor party, the world is witnessing the great experimental test as to whether under full employment which Britain has, with high productivity which she must have to survive and with free labor which she clings to with deep conviction, an answer can be found to the riddle of the Sphinx.

Daily Bible Thought

No man knows the time nor the place nor the manner of Christ's coming. If you live right you may welcome Him into your life every day: "Ye observe days, and months, and times and years. I am afraid of you, lest I have bestowed upon you labor in vain." —Gal. 4:10, 11.

PINNACLE OF SCIENCE

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Monday, April 19, 1937.

The lives of Muriel and William Mattson, children of Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Mattson, of Tacoma, Wash., parents of slain Charles Mattson, 10, had been threatened in a flood of letters received every day since the kidnaping of Charles on Dec. 27, 1936. Dr. Mattson expressed the belief that the kidnap-slayer of his son would soon be captured.

Mrs. Caroline Hack, 76-year-old widow of near Cardington, was found dead in bed at her home. Investigation revealed that the aged woman had been shot three times in the head and beaten with a sharp instrument.

A daughter was born to Mr and Mrs. C. A. Boganwright of west of Marion and a son to Mr. and Mrs Robert Augenstein of Waldo.

Mansfield High school withdrew from the North-Central Ohio Scholastic Athletic league as the result of a controversy over its refusal to accede to the demands of other schools to play night football games.

The twentieth anniversary of the organization of the Burroughs Nature club and the centenary of John Burroughs were observed by the club with a dinner and program at Hotel Harding.

Mrs. B. J. Cehrs and Mrs. Oliver Hamilton entertained Le Mercure club at the home of the former on Mt. Vernon avenue.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Tuesday, April 19, 1927.

The body of Edward Kavanaugh, 68, Erie engineer and former Marion councilman, was brought to his North State street home from Dayton, where he had met death the preceding day when struck by a train.

Announcement was made by Fred B. Scherff, manager of Crystal Lake park, that the opening dance would be April 28 with music by Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians.

Mrs. Ralph Williams, Mrs. Willard Young and Mrs. James Jamison were enrolled as new members at a meeting of the Imperial club at the home of Mrs. Carl Duffey on Bellefontaine avenue.

Bluster or Business?

By STEWART ALSOP

CAIRO, April 19 — The outward and visible manifestations of the Arab league, which has just finished its deliberations here, have been enough to make any American feel homesick. Seeing the delegates assemble for a banquet, it is necessary to pinch oneself to dispel the illusion that a Shriners' convention is in progress. So close is the similarity — the horn-rimmed glasses, the babble of talk, the slightly self-conscious geniality, the sober business suits topped by the incongruous red fez —that one is inclined to wonder whether it is the Shriners who imitate the Arabs, or the Arabs who imitate the Shriners. The latter impression is reinforced by the spectacle of sheik, vigorously but inexpertly jitterbugging in a night club near the Pyramids.

Behind all this surface frivolity, however, there are certain serious political facts.

The first has been only dimly grasped in America, the starting growth of nationalism among the peoples variously described as dependent, backward or colonial. There is a close connection between the highly oratorical deliberations of the Arab league and the fighting in Indo-China and the Dutch East Indies, the British withdrawal from Burma, or the squabbles of Jinnah and Nehru.

Arab Peculiarities

All over that vast section of the world, once run from Europe, people are determined to throw off western domination and to go about making a mess of things in their own way. The Arab version of nationalism is peculiar in that there are two distinct kinds of Arab nationalism. First, there is Pan-Arabism, which strengthens the Arab league. It is nurtured by the common language, the common religion and above all the common political and economic situation of the Arab states.

The leading exponent of Pan-Arabism is Abdel Rahman Azzam Pasha, a thin, nervous man, highly articulate, with a wily intelligence. Azzam is the secretary general of the Arab league and is credited with having negotiated the infinitely delicate arrangements which make the league possible, including the reconciliations among Ibn Saud, monarch of Saudi Arabia, and Egypt's King Farouk and Transjordan's Abdullah. The fact that the recent meetings of the Arab league here made a fine show of unity among the Arab states is largely credited to the tireless efforts of Azzam. He has now taken to his bed in exhaustion.

One can hardly blame him. For beneath the surface of Pan-Arabism there are the individual nationalisms of the Arab states and the ambitions and fears of their rulers, which have frequently threatened the league with total disintegration. These internal conflicts add up to a long list of family suspicions and squabbles between Ibn Saud and Abdullah, between Abdullah and the Damascene families who rule Syria and who fear Abdullah's plans for a greater Syria, between the Christians and Moslems in the Lebanon, between the Husseinis and other Arab families in Palestine (a maverick Husseini who preached Arab-Jewish co-operation was recently assassinated, more in sorrow than in anger by order of his distressed relatives); between the Arab states and Egypt, which many Arabs regard as not really Arab at all and suspect of trying to dominate the Arab league, between other Arab Moslems and Farouk, who is darkly suspected of itching for the Moslem caliphate; and so on. That the Arab league has not exploded long since is astonishing.

Azzam Pasha can take some credit. Perhaps the British can too, although most British hotly deny that perfidious Albion had a real hand in creating the league. Since a good proportion of the league's activities consist in twisting the lion's tail, it is difficult not to believe them. At any rate what has really kept the league together in precarious unity has been the league's mortal enemy, Zionism. Many observers believe that if the Palestine question is ever settled the league will automatically fall apart.

It is difficult to distinguish how much loud bluster there is in the Arab states' opposition to the creation of a Jewish state, and how much real feeling. There is probably a great deal of both, but with the bluster predominating, for example, in Egypt and the feeling in Iraq. It is also difficult to judge just what the reaction in the Arab world would actually be to partition.

German Cemetery Irks Norwegians

By The Associated Press

OSLO, Norway—The bodies of 3,000 German soldiers killed in action during the war in Norway and buried in the so-called "German cemetery of honor" at Ekeberg near Oslo, are going to be removed, a report from the Ministry of Defense says.

Numerous protests had been filed by Norwegians, living in the neighborhood of the cemetery. People demanded the graves to be removed on the grounds that the Nazi idea of honor is inconsistent with that of the Norwegians.

The Busman Bookie

Police charges that an operator who dro[ve] a new forty-four-passenger bus, with no pa[s]sengers, from New York to Florida, is a horse [r]player and bookie would seem to elevate [a] man to new levels of versatility. Anybody [c]an handicap, read the entries and take bet[s] in addition to driving a bus, making change, issu[e] transfers and answering questions is certa[in] no turtle.

We think we now place the fellow. He [i]s the driver who refused to let us aboard a bus [o]n Lexington avenue a few months ago declar[ing] "I'm carrying too much weight already."

* * *

And we think we encountered him on a F[if]th avenue bus in the operator who, rebuked [for] being late, snapped "I was carried wide at the head of the stretch."

* * *

At any rate the idea of a bus operator being a handicapper and book-maker on the side set us to thinking, and we imagined we were struggling aboard the bus of such a resourceful busman:

Passenger (barely managing to squeeze aboard)—Just a minute, please! Easy on the doors!

Busman—Steady or I'll send the whole [bus] back for a fresh start.

Passenger—You stopped 30 feet beyond the sign anyhow.

Busman—I got them furlong poles mixed.

Passenger—You're the same driver who makes it tough like this every trip.

Busman—Yeah, I ain't in form yet.

Passenger—I took this same bus last night and got the same rough stuff.

Busman—Like I just said I ain't so hot now but I'm rounding into shape.

Another Passenger (as the bus suddenly pitches all hands around)—Hey, what goes on?

Busman—I stumbled leaving the barrier.

A Third Rider (as a sudden stop throws him off his feet)—Say, what's the matter with you?

Busman—This bus don't like the track conditions.

Passenger—Please stop at the next corner.

Busman—I can't stop at the next corner.

Passenger—Why not?

Busman—This is a distance bus. You should of took a sprinter.

(There is a crash with a taxi. The taxi driver leaps out and examines his car.)

Taxi Driver—Whatta big idea?

Busman—You bore in on me at the far turn.

Taxi Driver—I was just coasting along and—

Busman—Aw, claim a foul! Tell it to the stewards!

Taxi Driver—You're the screwiest driver I ever seen!

Busman—You should see me when I'm really leveling!

(The bus ultimately reaches the terminal with passengers pretty much the worse for wear.)

Passenger—I wanna tell you this was the worse performance I ever say by any driver.

Busman—Watch me next time out!

The Younger Degeneration

Our Alice got a hunch one day
(She's 8, and unafraid)
That killing baby would be gay—
She used the garden spade.
Our Johnny, waxing rather tough
(He's 7, and a brat)
Decided nurse had lived enough—
He used a baseball bat.
I think that I shall never see
More lovely kids than these;
They romp and play so guilelessly,
And murder just to tease;

Yet when they sit upon my knee
I'm somehow ill at ease.

Flowers

By TRUMAN TWILL

The females on the premises are decorating their desks with daffodils and sprays of forsythia. A little later, they will bring lilac clusters to work. When it's time for roses, their beauty and perfume will brighten the premises, and next fall the females will wind up the summer floral season with bunches of chrysanthemums.

Besides decorating their own desks, they'd fancy up their boss's desk if they thought they could get away with it. Meanwhile, in their own homes, no doubt, they are tending a flock of potted plants, or exhorting some male to dig for liberty in the flower garden. It's a curious situation. Men may raise flowers, but women enjoy them.

This is the way it has been since the first heavy-fisted babe stuck a trailing arbutus in a crack in the cave and it caught the eye of her lover boy at the end of a hard day passing saber-toothed tigers. He got the idea in his dimwitted way and began to notice trailing arbutus while slogging through the big woods. It was only a few thousand years after that before he tumbled to the proposition of cultivating the stuff and turning an honest dollar supplying it to other dim-wits for their own heavy-fisted babes.

Meanwhile, the babes themselves had been getting ideas. The first house plants had appeared, and soon afterward the man of the house was encouraged to blow cigar smoke on them to kill the plant lice. Flower gardens began to take shape, as countless women nagged the patience out of countless men to do the spade-work involved therein. In due course of time women invaded the once-sacred precincts of masculine endeavor and began to bring flowers to work, to look at during the day.

A little later a bold entrepreneur proved it was possible to persuade eager beavers to buy orchids at prices up to $25 an ork, same to be turned over to an unattached lady whose acceptance practically amounted to an offer to go steady if the creep cared $25 worth. Also the price of roses went up until it could be said that a rose by any other name would rattle like a pocketful of silver dollars, also the African violet was invented.

All these horticultural high-jinks were perpetrated either by or for females. The males did nothing but wield the spade in springtime, go into the florist business for a living, and look foolish—and a little pleased—when they noticed that there was a daffodil in a coke bottle on the desk of one of the females who worked around the place.

Would it be admitting too much to say that a daffodil in a coke bottle represents what all of us are looking for, in one way or another—a little beauty in an ugly world?

Why Go To Church?

A Sermonette

By REV. CLAIRE T. CRENSHAW

Rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church

TODAY we would like to suggest some of the answers to the question: Why should I go to church regularly?

Our age seems to have forgotten the fact that true freedom is built upon discipline, that democracy involves responsibility. We can never drift in a good society. Each generation must win, through discipline and effort, a victory over self in order that we might be self-governed. Otherwise, we demand, for the protection of all, a dictatorship which will demand at the point of a gun, if necessary, good conduct and proper disciplines of life.

Man has learned a good deal about controlling nature. What man must now learn is to set up inner controls—to control himself. Again, we are told, and this is no new thing, that the problems of the world are spiritual ones—that man has been trying too long to live by bread alone, and that now he must turn again to God in order to exist upon this planet. The basic discipline is that of the spirit — "He who controlleth his spirit is greater than he who wins a city." Spiritual discipline is one of the results, as well as a cause, of church attendance.

The basic question we must answer—before we give the tinny sounding excuse "Sunday is my only day to sleep, etc."—is, Do you believe in God? Is there a power in and behind the universe, or are all the stories which the ages have given us just a series of pious lies? If they are lies, then forget it—if you can.

If you believe in God—especially as He is revealed in Jesus Christ, then you owe Him at least one of the hours of the week as one aspect of responsible living. Just as a matter of gratitude, if for no other reason should we attend church regularly.

2. If you have been baptized, then you have become a member of a family. God sent His Son into the world to save it, but the Son is gone. He left to carry on His work a group of people—we call this group of people the church. You are the church, and when the church fails, you fail. When the church succeeds, it is because you have succeeded in practicing the precepts of the Christian family. You are important, therefore, because you represent Christ to the world today, and the world judges the church by the conduct of its members. Each Sunday, you will say, "I must go to church." It's your duty, just as much as it's your duty to be on time to meals in your own home.

NOW some people say that they can not go to church because there are so many hypocrites in church. The answer to that one is, "Come on in, there's always room for one more." Something may happen to the hypocrite who comes to church — he might change, but he won't change unless he comes regularly.

Some say that they can worship God in nature just as well as in church, if not better. They prefer the quiet seclusion of their own gardens, or of their own sitting rooms. There are two answers to this one: The first is that usually it is a weak evasion. Most of us will admit that this is just talk, because few think of God in nature except occasionally. The same person would never allow his child to get away with a statement that he did not need to go to school to get an education; that he could study anywhere, in the garden, or out in the woods, or in the parlor in an easy chair.

If we do worship God in the garden, or on the golf course (and some of the language one hears on the golf course certainly isn't conducive to worship—just listen), then we are living on borrowed capital—we are religious parasites. We are receiving and not giving. Perhaps we read the Bible — it was written by the church and translated into your language by the church. Our religion has come down to us because men and women were disciplined enough and brave enough to die for it. But what do we do in gratitude? Criticise, mostly.

The truth about the matter is that human experience has revealed that God is NOT equally present or men in all places. He is more fully present in a Bible than in a rose bush. He is more present in the sacrament on the altar than on a golf tee. Men would never have gone to the trouble and expense of building churches, if God could have been found elsewhere just as well.

Or perhaps you are one of the people who says that he had enough church-going in his youth, and now has graduated into the non-attendance class. What happens when a man stops exercising after high school athletics? Very surely and certainly his body loses its tone. (And we've all seen some awfully pot-bellied people spiritually also). Or if we stop studying and reading after we have completed our formal education? We lose the edge of our thinking power. What happens if, after mowing our lawn faithfully for 15 years we suddenly stop mowing it? The answer is clear. We are at times and in most ways a very practical people, but we are often very impractical when it comes to the life of the spirit. We either go forwards or backwards. We mow our lawns, clip our hedges, fight against weeds, grease our machines, exercise our bodies, and feed our minds. Very good! But when it comes to faith, hope, charity, temperance, fortitude, justice — all these we expect to flower in the spirit of man without the slightest effort on our part. Silly, isn't it?

SOME speak slightingly of church-going as a matter of habit. They forget the important truth that man is a bundle of habits. We either build good habits or bad habits. The person who does not have the habit of washing his face, has the bad habit of not washing his face. The man who does not have the good habit of attending church, has the bad habit of not attending church.

The question: "What do I get out of it?" is an unfortunate one. It misses the point for two reasons: (1) It forgets that churchgoing is for the primary purpose of worshipping God — to give to Him the praise and thanksgiving which He deserves, which makes us bigger people. We go to church to give. If there are benefits, they come as a result of giving, and not of getting. We go to church to try, in this small manner, to give back all that we owe to our Creator and sustainer. (2) The question also shows that one has lost the spirit of our Lord. He came to give. He even acted as servant and washed the disciples feet. It is far better if one is willing to ask: "What can I do to help my fellowman? How can I help some child to grow in faith and hope and love?" Perhaps some child is going to copy his life according to yours. If you wish to receive something from church, you must go as a worshipper and not as a spectator. Then you will not be so critical. Perhaps some of the things are not as good as you expect them to be; perhaps the music is not properly sung; possibly the sermon is not a work of art and eloquence. It is sometimes good for us to realize that there is at least the possibility that Sunday after Sunday you could probably preach no better sermons than your minister. He, and the musicians, are human just like you.

After all, it's just a matter of setting your spiritual alarm clock every Sunday and of pulling that lazy body out of bed, clothing it, and taking it to church—every Sunday. It will make even you a better person. It will help your selfrespect, and if you give something to it you will come away filled with real peace.

Religious Workers To Sing in Marion

A trio of religious workers and musicians from out of the state will be heard at the Marion Youth for Christ service in the Masonic hall next Saturday night, it was announced today. The group is from Wheaton college, Wheaton, Ill., and includes Don Crider of Altoona, Pa., speaker, Jack MacDonald of Villa Park, Ill., song leader and trumpet soloist, and Glenn Frank of Milwaukee, Wis., pianist. The first two named are preparing for missionary work in India and South America, respectively. Comfort and Convenience Offered in This Model Home Plan

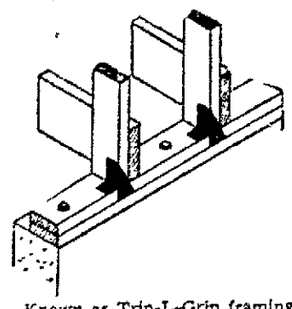
YOUR HOME TODAY and TOMORROW

by W. Wadsworth Wood

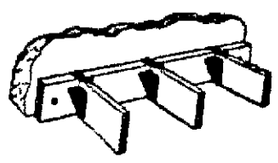
A new timber connector, known as a framing anchor, used in home and light construction to increase rigidity around window and door openings and as added strength in floor and wall framing is meeting with widespread approval by architects and engineers, according to the Timber Engineering company

Made of 18 gauge zinc-coated, corrosion-resistant sheet steel the anchors are joined to the wood with non-splitting full bodied nails that develop maximum shear without splitting the lumber.



Known as Trip-L-Grip framing anchors, the devices have been laboratory tested at Georgia Tech and are now specified in joining joists to beams, beams to posts, studs to sills, rafters to plates, studs to girts and other house-framing connections. They develop both shear and tension Costs are reduced through eliminating presently used cumbersome and expensive methods and less materials are required

Toe nailing uncertainties are replaced, bridging is eliminated in attaching joists on trusses and notching is unnecessary.



In high wind areas, the anchors afford good wind anchorage in tieing rafters tight, thus strongly guarding against uplifting roofs. In Florida, one user states the anchors are the solution to many small but highly important problems arising in the general framing of wood construction and he finds the anchors fit naturally into at least 90% of house framing joints.

Like all basically sound units, they are of the utmost simplicity. If connections are at angles, flanges can be bent accordingly In addition to home construction, anchors are also used in farm buildings, prefabricated housing, timber trusses, form work, scaffolding, platforms, jigs and templates

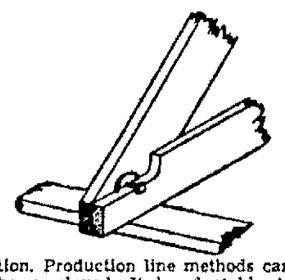
Descriptive literature is available from the Timber Engineering company.

New Rafter Saves Lumber

A new type trussed rafter that saves up to 400 feet of lumber in a 2-bedroom house is now being used in 314 veterans' houses under construction, has been specified in 403 more, and is now under consideration by builders for an additional 2,100 units. Inquiries from architects and engineers for copies of the design have reached 75 a week The Timber Engineering company, developers of the design, predicts its quick adoption in all parts of the country.

The rafter has only four basic members plus two scabs. There are no right or left-hand members. The rafters can be fabricated at job site or in a shop. A minimum of equipment consisting of a cut-off saw and a portable or stationary drill and four simple patterns is all that is required Experienced labor is unnecessary.

There is no complicated notching, no spiking which eliminates possible splitting Ring grooves and bolt holes are cut in one operation. Production line methods can be employed. It is adaptable to both single and multiple housing units.



Through these rafters as much as 400 feet of lumber can be saved in a 2-bedroom house by eliminating heavy bearing partitions and using non-bearing partitions such as light studs There is less waste by pre-cutting and ridge board is eliminated

Rafters preassembled on the ground are erected as a unit thus giving faster erection and affording interiors quicker protection from weather. A movable jib table means faster assembly. Rafters for one four-room house can be assembled by two men in an hour. There is no shimming or fitting due to inaccurate hand framing

With standardized exterior walls, roof and ceiling, any interior layout can be developed The designer does not have to build rooms around bearing partitions as the partitions can be placed anywhere without regard to ceiling framing This flexibility makes it possible to provide 3, 4, 5 or 6-room houses with the economy of standardized structural frame work Prefabricated storage wall units will increase storage space in small homes without the expense of on-the-job framing of closets They form partitions but are moved into place after plastering

Mildewed Linen

Q: Is there any way I can remove mildew from wash linens? I wish to do the work here at home.

A: If badly discolored, mildew stains may be permanent, and the fabric damaged by them. Light mildew stains if not too old can be removed by rubbing with a little water and yellow laundry soap, covering with powdered starch and salt, then exposing to the sun. Another method is to moisten the stains with lemon juice and salt and exposing to the sun. Old stains should be laundered, then soaked in a solution of javelle water or laundry bleach Mix thoroughly two tablespoonfuls of the bleach in each quart of water and soak the linen five to fifteen minutes Rinse thoroughly in clear water and hang in the sun to dry Repeat the treatment if necessary Bleaches may weaken the fabric, and care should be taken in using them

Ashes for the Garden

Q: I read somewhere that ashes can be used in a garden We have a coal-fired furnace and wonder if we can find a good use for the ashes.

A: You can get a pamphlet on the use of ashes in garden soil from the Anthracite Industries, Inc, 101 Park Avenue, New York 17

NO SUPERVISORS FOR GALION PLAYGROUNDS

Special to The Star

GALION, April 19—Because of lack of funds there will be no playground supervision at the Heise park playground this summer, it was announced by the Galion board of education at the April meeting, Thursday night.

The board assigned O. J. Dewalt to custodial supervision of the park this summer. Since it is impossible to replace the bleachers at the park this year, the board decided to repair the present bleachers. The American Legion was granted use of the park for summer baseball again this season.

A report of finances of the city, submitted by Clerk Isa Monroe, showed a deficit in the general fund of $2,837.12, as of March 31. A balance in the bond fund was given as $7,506.60, and in the school lunch fund the balance is $1,337.72. Financial needs of the schools made it necessary for the board to ask for an advance draw of $10,000. from the Crawford county auditor.

Mr. Dewalt gave a report to the board of janitorial problems and the need for additional help. This led to a decision of the board to advertise for two janitors for immediate work and through the summer.

On the basis of successful completion of the general educational development tests taken at Kankakee, Ill., Paul Harsh of 858 South Market street was granted a high school diploma.

YOUR HEALTH

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

Pregnancy

The care of the mother-to-be is of extreme importance, not only to the future of the child, but to the mother herself.

A number of the difficulties of the child-bearing time can be avoided by intelligent following of a certain routine. When this is done the period of waiting need not be one of discomfort but, rather, a time of good health. And good health promotes the good spirits and serene mental attitude which may have a direct bearing on the mother's later attitude toward her child.

Certain of these matters, though important, are very simple. For example, the mother-to-be should wear low-heeled shoes and no tight garters. Her clothes should be light and loose fitting. Tub baths should not be taken during the last month, and enemas or injections of fluid into the lower bowel should not be employed unless the doctor specifically orders them.

In regard to exercise, according to Dr. Arthur L. Rivers, of the Medical College of South Carolina, activity should depend on what is usual for the individual. However, no patient should take part in athletics. Traveling in general should be restricted.

The pregnant woman should gain only about 20 pounds during the nine-month period not because limiting the weight gain affects the size of the baby but, rather, because it acts as a protection against toxemia or poisoning. With a limited weight gain, there is less likely to be indigestion; bowel elimination will be more normal and the mother-to-be will in general be more comfortable.

Not so many years ago pregnant women were instructed to eat only limited amounts of protein foods such as meat, milk and eggs for fear of damage to the kidneys. Nowadays it is generally agreed that a lack of protein food is likely to make toxemia more liable to occur and the diet should be planned around a high protein intake. With insufficient protein, anemia or lessening of the coloring of the blood, poor tone or strength of the muscles of the womb, lowered resistance to infection and a poor breast milk supply may all result.

If the diet contains plenty of green vegetables and fresh fruits most of the vitamins and minerals needed will be supplied. Starchy foods, such as bread and cereals as well as sugars should be restricted in order to lessen the weight gain. Skim milk or buttermilk may be employed to aid in providing lime and other minerals. It may be advisable to give some special preparation of calcium or lime together with vitamin D to make sure that it is taken up and used by the body.

SPANISH WAR VETS MARK MUSTER DAY

Marion Camp Holds Services at Legion Dugout.

The annual muster day services, which are held each year as near April 21 as possible, were conducted by Marion Camp No. 32, United Spanish War Veterans, Friday night in the Legion Dugout. A potluck supper at 6:30, given by the women of the Betsy Ross auxiliary, preceded the services and a meeting of the auxiliary was held in the afternoon.

At the services, the members renew the oath which was taken the day they were mustered into the service. William T. Niles, commander, gave the call to order and R. M. Miller presided as master of ceremonies. Nineteen veterans out of the 32 living in the county were present.

James E. Messenger gave a short history of the members of the Marion camp. Those who went from Marion county served in Puerto Rico, Cuba, the Philippines and in China, and all branches of the service were represented. From the history, it was learned that the men from Marion county took an active part in the Spanish-American war.

A social hour followed the services and cards were played.

At the auxiliary meeting in the afternoon, Mrs. Susie Wederts, president, presided, and Mrs. Hattie Richards, chaplain, conducted devotions. Two delegates, Mrs. Dolly Anthony and Mrs. Emma Campbell, and two alternates, Mrs. Flossie Ooley and Mrs. Pauline Plaiz, were elected to attend the department convention to be held June 22-25 in Columbus. The charter was draped in memory of the past department president, Mrs. Eva Buchanan of Canton, who died in March. Plans were made for a card party for the camp, the auxiliary and friends to be held May 16. During the social hour, a contest prize was won by Mrs. Anna B. Jones.

The projects are sewers on Patten and Patterson streets, a concrete sidewalk on Merchant avenue and a curb and gutter on Clover avenue. Bids will be opened May 8, and work will probably be begun soon after, Uncapher said.

Announcement was also made of completion of a short sewer on York street from Waterloo street to Fies avenue. The contractor, G. K. Kohbarger, will begin work Monday on a sewer on Fahey street, from Silk street south about half a block. This job should be finished within three weeks, according to the safety-service director.

Work is continuing on the Clintons treet trunk sewer. The portion between West Center street and Woodrow avenue is expected to be completed by June 30, Uncapher said.

They are sewers in Patterson, Patten, Bennett, Nye, Glad, York and Fahey streets and Fies avenue; sidewalks on Uncapher and Merchant avenues and Henry street; and curb and gutter on Clover avenue.

Mrs. Grace Marie Craglow, 56, of 698 North Main street, died in the home of a brother, Avery Hollanshead, in Cardington at 10 p. m. yesterday. She had been ill four months, suffering from a heart ailment, and had been at the brother's home eight weeks.

In November, 1911, she married William H. Craglow in Canada. He died in Marion July 12, 1944. A resident of Marion 25 years, Mrs. Craglow came here from Forest. She was a member of Central Christian church, of the Jessie Buckley class and Dorcas circle of the church, of Canby Temple No. 152, Pythian Sisters, and of the Eagles auxiliary.

LEONARD

was he tried to roll over on his back, just as knocked-down fighter would do, to watch a "count."

Stumbles Over Body

One of the fighters stumbled over Benny's body. Dr. Vincent Nardiello, the state commission physician, hurried into the ring. A stretcher was brought, and Benny was carefully carried to a dressing room. But he already was dead. Dr. Nardiello called it a cerebral hemorrhage. In the death certificate issued later, Dr. William Benenson, as assistant medical examiner, gave the cause as coronary thrombosis.

Brilliant Ring Career

Thus ended one of the most brilliant careers in fistic history, a career that saw the little Jewish jolter from Harlem, who was born Benjamin Leiner, win the lightweight crown from Freddie Welsh in 1917, less than five years after he first put on a glove; that saw him go 11 years—from 1913 until his first retirement—without losing a fight, except one he dropped on a foul when he went out of his class to challenge Jack Britton for the welterweight crown in 1922.

It was a brilliant career, too. Few if any fighters lived the life of an athlete like the pleasant little fellow who was liked by everyone.

He never smoked or drank. His condition and habits were such that he served as a physical instructor for Uncle Sam in two World Wars—for the army as a GI in the first one and as a lieutenant commander in the merchant marine, although he was crowding 50, in the second. Three years ago, he was awarded the prized Edward J. Neil memorial award as the man who did the most for boxing in 1944.

Bridges Questions Policy Of U. S. State Department

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 19 — Senator Bridges (R-NH), asserted today the state department is "attempting to carry water on both shoulders" by seeking to complete lend lease shipments to Russia and head off Communism in Greece and Turkey at the same time.

Bridges, chairman of the senate appropriations committee, told a reporter he will do all he can to block sending the Russians $17,000,000 worth of oil refining equipment and machine tools they had on order when lend lease experts were halted last Dec. 31.

"I am startled, surprised and shocked that the state department and my colleague, Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), still advocate carrying out this agreement," Bridges said.

2 Fugitives Held In Abduction of Ohioan

By The Associated Press

GREENFIELD, O., April 19—Prosecution of two fugitives from the London prison farm was to be conducted here in connection with an assault and robbery of an 80-year-old Greenfield rooming house operator. They were captured yesterday at Bainbridge, Ohio.

The men, identified as Joseph Sonner, 44, of Hillsboro, and Edward Quinlan, 29, of Youngstown, denied knowledge of Wednesday's reported abduction of a Columbus housewife and five auto thefts in the Franklin and Delaware county areas, state highway patrolmen said.

Sonner was charged by Mayor W. F. Woodmansee of Greenfield with assault and robbery of Rufus Rupp, while Quinlan was named as an accessory. Sonner was serving a prison term for forgery and Quinlan for operating an automobile without the owner's consent when the pair escaped in prison garb from the London institution.

LaRue P.-T. A. Votes Donation

Special to The Star

LARUE—An appropriation of $80 to the first eight grades of the LaRue school for the purchase of library books was approved by the LaRue P.-T.A. at a meeting Monday evening.

The appropriation was made following a report of Mrs. James Dutton, chairman of a bake sale held recently and netting a total of $77 for the benefit of the grade libraries. The remaining sum was added from the general fund to make an average of $10 for each of the rooms.

LABOR VOTE

about this bill outlawing the closed shop," said Cong. Smith. "The fact is, however, that it specifically legalizes the union shop and, generally speaking, there is little difference between the two. The closed shop can hire only union members, whereas a union shop can hire persons who do not belong to the union but who are compelled to join within 30 days after receiving employment. It is provided that if not less than 51 per cent of the employes in a plant vote for a union shop and the employer voluntarily agrees thereto, then a union ship is formed. Here lies one of the most vicious evils of the entire measure, to vest an employer and a majority of the employes of a plant with power to force their will upon a minority of the workers and compel them to pay tribute for the right to work is nothing short of involuntary servitude. The Constitution forbids this and guarantees to every man the right to voluntarily join or not join a union, to work when, where, and at whatever occupation is open to him for employment, at any wage he can individually and voluntarily agree upon with an employer, without having to pay tribute to any one."

"After all," he concluded, "I can not forget I took an oath to support and defend the Constitution of the United States."

agents for the French government-owned ship, told investigators that longshoremen had loaded approximately 2,300 tons of ammonium nitrate on the ship on the day before the explosion.

A trio of Coast Guard seamen testified on trips they had made aboard the High Flyer and Wilson B. Keene, two other ships sunk, the latter by the explosion of the High Flyer early Thursday morning.

Leo Falgut, 34, of New Orleans, a carpenter's mate second class, told of boarding the High Flyer in company of a priest. He said they made a thorough inspection of the ship shortly after he had arrived at the scene of the Grandcamp explosion on the Coast Guard cutter Iris.

He said they found the engine room taking water and a fire in one hold. He testified that he later went on board the Keene and saw what appeared to be grain smouldering.

The crew of the Iris passed up many bodies of the dead on the shore when they arrived at the explosion scene, Falgut said, because "we wanted to devote our time to the living."

James MacCaulay, 28, of New Orleans, electrician's mate second class testified he made a trip aboard the Keene. He said it looked "like a tin can might look if it were hit with a hammer." He said he heard steam seeping.

Danny Johnson, 22, of Cincinnati, corroborated MacCaulay's story.

Admiral Finlay made it clear that the Coast Guard board "will not fine or sentence any personnel," but he said it has the power to revoke seamen's licenses and "will do so" if the evidence justifies such action.

Texas City Rescue Worker Finds Paper Worth $10,000,000

By HAL BOYLE
Associated Press Writer

TEXAS CITY, Tex., April 19— The next time Paul Stokes finds a dollar bill on the sidewalk, he may not even stoop to pick it up. Yesterday he found $10,000,000.

Stokes, a Houston, Tex., man, has been putting in 24 hours a day as a rescue worker. He was probing the ruins of the Texas City Terminal Railway Company when he came across the company safe.

It looked like a safe cracker had used too large a load of nitro on it. It was a messy job, but efficient.

Inside was a mass of paper. Stokes took them to W. H. Sandberg, vice president of the company.

"Thank God for this," Sandberg said. "This is seven million dollars in company fire insurance policies."

He gave Stokes the keys to other rooms and asked him to look around again. This time Stokes took a sheet with him. He entered room after ruined room.

When he came back, he had more paper. They were 500 individual policies of workers, and Sandberg said they amounted to over $3,000,000.

"I had a sheet full of them," Stokes said, removing his tin helmet and wiping his forehead on the sleeve of a white jacket.

Sandberg said their recovery would speed up steps in recovering insurance tremendously.

Stokes earlier had helped recover 86 bodies. Six had been in the first floor of the terminal, and Stokes said "There's more there, but we need heavy equipment to get to them."

He reached into his pocket and pulled out a shiny medal. He looked at it and read aloud, slowly: "The Thomas Jefferson southern award by the Virginia court of review for significant literary work on southern United States. 1941." The name wasn't clear. "Joint."

"I suppose he's dead now," Stokes said.

PAUL ROBESON SAYS PEORIA TERRORIZED

By The Associated Press

PEORIA, Ill., April 19—Singer Paul Robeson sidestepped a promised public appearance here last night because he said "the whole town is under a wave of terror that is unbelievable."

With his second scheduled concert cancelled by order of Mayor Carl O. Triebel, the Negro lifted his baritone voice against what he called "being branded a subversive without trial."

In a news conference at the home of a Negro labor leader, the singer asserted that Peoria "goes on record as being taken over by the Fascist element." He decided against the promised public speech, he said, because Mayor Tribel had said "my appearance would be incitement to riot."

Earlier, the mayor had withdrawn permission for Robeson to use a small assembly room in city hall for a concert and Robeson replied that he would make a speech instead, "on a sidewalk if necessary."

Official action against the singer's appearance was first taken by the city council last Tuesday night after Robeson had been named by the house committee on unAmerican activities as one of a group of persons "invariably found supporting the Communist party and its front organization."

The council adopted a resolution disapproving of the appearance in Peoria of "any speaker or artist who is an avowed or active propagandist for unAmerican ideology."

Harding Nine Trims Ashland 4-2 in Five-Hit Performance

Harding's baseball crew partially compensated for close beatings in football and basketball this school year as they defeated Ashland 4 to 2 there yesterday.

The deciding clout was a three bagger by Bob Ralston with two out in the fifth with three aboard. Hill, Thomas, and Owens were brought in.

Riley scored the first Prexy run, being walked in.

Pitcher Jack Owens who went the route for the Prexies allowed only five hits. Ashland runs crossed the plate in the fifth and sixth but the game had been put on ice by Ralston's hit.

Ashland used pitchers Messiner and Steward over the seven inning route, Steward being charged with the loss.

This was the second President win in as many starts. Their other victory was a 12 to 6 win over Pleasant.

The next Harding game will be at Galion Monday and Tuesday they entertain Caledonia. Galion has also beaten the A's.

Cathedral Latin Has Slim Edge In Mansfield Relays

By The Associated Press

MANSFIELD, O., April 19—Cleveland's Cathedral Latin High school track team held a slim edge as heavy competition in the first postwar Mansfield relays opened here today.

The Cleveland squad, winning yesterday's lone event — the four mile special relay—by an eyelash headed the only other scorers, Cleveland West Tech, Mansfield, Akron South, and Toledo Devilbiss when 67 schoolboy cinder squads and 811 individuals prepread to fight it out for championships in the regular events.

Cleveland East Tech was the pre-meet favorite. They also were the defending champs in a wartime carry-over for it was East Tech that triumphed in Mansfield's last previous high school track spectacle in 1942.

Cathedral Latin's momentary lead was earned mainly through the Trojan efforts of anchorman Bernie Javorek who broke the tape in the four-mile special just a step ahead of Tech's George Gross. The time was 19 minutes 41.1 seconds.

Lima Army Flier Safe After Panama Crash

By The Associated Press

BALBOA, Canal Zone, April 19—One pilot was missing and another was safe after two Thunderbolt fighters crashed Thursday night north of San Jose, Guatemala, the U. S. Army announced yesterday.

The missing pilot, whose name was withheld, was believed to have parachuted into jungle territory somewhere near the mouth of the Nahualate river. The other, Capt. Robert J. Burns of Lima, O., was found in a jungle area near a United Fruit Co. plantation, about four miles east of the Nahualate river mouth. The announcement gave no indication of burns, injuries, if any.

SWINGTIME PAYS OFF AS CUBS BLAST BALL

Localites Punish Horsehide To Hot Licks from PA System.

A few hot numbers and the local Cubs took some mighty hot licks.

Loud speakers of the new public address system were installed at Lincoln park yesterday and the Cubs warmed up with swing music floating across the diamond.

Music may have power to soothe the savage beast, but it didn't have any effects on the savage bat. Coss and Hazen teams met in an intra-squad game again and at the end of 9 innings the score stood 15 all. That, the Cubs decided was enough ball playing for one day.

It was strictly a hitters game as Coss's pounded out 20 hits and Hazen's batted out 13. Three home runs, two by pitchers, were recorded in the tilt.

Pitchers Gerald Peters (Coss), and Paul Strohl (Hazen), each sent the ball out of the park and Bob Boddy, (Coss) shortstop, slammed one over the score board.

Batting honors went to Mel Weibel (Coss), who connected six times in six trips to the plate. Two of his hits were for an extra base. Peters was the only other player to have a perfect day. He got a double his other time up.

Fielding yesterday, although not flawless, was very satisfactory. Coss was charged with only two errors and Hazen with five.

Some of the outstanding fielding plays were a Forbes (1b) to Tutera (ss) to Forbes again double play with Tutera jumping the man going down to get his throw off and the stop of a hot grounder and glove hand toss to second for a force-out by Boddy.

BOUDREAU BENCHES THIRD OF INDIANS

Cleveland Pilot Seeks Combination To End Scorelessness.

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, April 19 — Manager Lou Boudreau of the Cleveland Indians was grimly humming the tune "there'll be some changes made" as he benched one-third of his starting lineup today in an attempt to inject some batting punch in the Tribe's second contest with the Detroit Tigers.

Striving to snap the Tribe's ignominious string of 18 scoreless innings and produce the Indians' first official 1947 run, Boudreau benched first baseman Eddie Robinson, center fielder Dale Mitchell and catcher Jim Hegan.

George Metkovich, former Boston Red Sox outfielder, will replace Fleming and Al Lopez will be installed at first base and behind the plate. Don Black, erstwhile "bad boy," will hurl against Detroit's Freddie Hutchinson in today's tilt.

Mitchell, Hegan and Robinson have rapped a combined total of two singles in the Tribe's two starts this year, but the rookie first sacker poled one of the Indians' three hits yesterday as Virgil (Fire) Trucks applied the second straight 2-0 whitewash brush to the Tribe.

Charley (Red) Embree contributed the Tribe's second straight superlative pitching performance, limiting Detroit to four safeties —but two of the hits were homers by Roy Cullenbine and Pat Mullin which sewed up the contest.

The greatest pitching rivalry in the major leagues will be renewed here tomorrow, the Tribe pilot added, when Cleveland's Bob Feller opposes the Tigers' Hal Newhouser before an expected capacity crowd.

An estimated 20 employes of the Erie from here bowled in the tournament. Another five-man group entered was the Erie team of the City league. Other Erie employes bowled in the doubles and singles.

Members of the Axe team were Elliott, Hoffman, Burdell, Shoemaker and Airey.

No Toe Rationing For Prospect Fox Terrier

Prospect has a dog with six toes on three feet and five on the other, according to its owner, Miss Ruth Beery of 1011 East Water street.

The many-toed canine is a toy fox terrier, which was born three and one-half months ago, of normal parents.

The puppy, named Tootsie, shows no other abnormality, Miss Berry says, except a fondness for a yellow cat three times larger than it is.

Greenberg and Kiner Infect Bucs with Home Run Fever

By The Associated Press

Association with Hank Greenberg and Ralph Kiner, the major league's home run kings, apparently has proven beneficial to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Some of the champions' fourply charm yesterday rubbed off on four of their teammates who availed themselves of five home runs, enough to give the National league leading Bucs a 12-11 victory over the Cincinnati Reds in a wild and wooly slugfest before a record Pittsburgh opening day crowd of 38,126.

Gets 2 Circuit Blows

Waldon (Wally) Westlake, a rookie outfielder from Oakland of the Pacific Coast league, who owes his place in the lineup to an injury to first baseman Elbie Fletcher, belted two round trippers. Fletcher's injury necessitated the switching of Greenberg to first, thus making room for Westlake. Another freshman, catcher LeRoy Jarvis, shortstop Billy Cox and left fielder Jimmy Russell, banged the others.

Catcher Ray Mueller of the Reds got into the round-trip picture when he pasted a Ken Heintzelman pitch into the "Greenberg Gardens," a tailor-made home run area in left field, with two on in the eighth.

Led by rookie Bobby Thomson and Billy Rigney, the New York Giants smashed out six circuit wallops to hand the Brooklyn Dodgers their initial setback of the season 10-4 before 37,546 Polo grounds fans.

Robinson Honors

Jackie Robinson, Dodger Negro first baseman, slammed his first home run and chipped in with a single for his best hitting day in the majors.

Rookie Earl Torgeson enjoyed a perfect day with a home run, double, single and two walks as the Braves outscored the Philadelphia Phils in Boston 10-7.

Andy Pafko's four-bagger was the only score made by the visiting Chicago Cubs as the world champion St. Louis Cardinals, behind the eight-hit pitching of Harry (The Cat) Brecheen, whipped the Bruins 4-1.

Williams Gets First

Ted Williams smacked his first home run of the season, with two aboard, to help the Boston Red Sox defeat the Philadelphia Athletics at Shibe Park 9-3.

The Chicago White Sox scored their second straight shutout victory, beating the St. Louis Browns 1-0 in Chicago.

The New York Yankees blanked the Senators in Washington 7-0 for the Nats' third loss. One of the 28,579 spectators was the nation's number one southpaw, President Harry S. Truman, who threw out the first ball—righthanded.

Delamaillieure Tried For Tiger Contract When 14 Years Old

Bob Delamaillieure, 20, of Detroit, a candidate for the Cub outfield, tried to get a contract from the Detroit Tigers working out with them when he was 14 years old.

When he was younger he was a rabid Tiger fan, hanging around their club house and getting to know many members of the team. Charlie Gehringer was one of the players whom he got to know especially well.

Bob, who now has a contract with the Cubs, comes to Marion through Hutchinson, Kas. Bob reported to the local camp Sunday. Before coming to Marion he was working out at the Cubs' Gl training camp in St. Augustine, Fla.

In high school he played baseball, basketball, and football. He was captain of his high school football team in his senior year.

He is married and plans to bring his wife to Marion if he stays with the club. At present he is shopping around for an apartment.

He is five-feet nine inches tall, weighs 170 pounds, and bats and throws right.

STOCKS RALLY LATE IN TODAY'S MARKET

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 19—Stocks rallied sharply in the latter part of today's market, after many leaders had hit new lows for the past six months or longer, with steels leading the climb in reflection of reports that U. S. Steel and the union had reached an agreement.

Most early losses running to a point or more were wiped out in the final half hour or converted into advances running to around 3 points for favorites. Activity broadened for a lengthy intetrval but slowdowns eventuated before the close and scattered declines persisted. Transfers for the two hours ran to about 700 000 shares.

The Western Union wage agreement aided sentiment at the start although the stock itself did nothing until the rest of the market finally began to rise. It eventually added about a point. A certain amount of bidding was credited to the thought that the list was due for a technical comeback. Labor situations, desp te steel and motor hopes, remained as a restraining influence marketwise. Highlighted here was the telegram one stalemate and the strike of Wall Street financial employes called for Monday.

In front of the late upswing were U S Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Chrysler, General Motors, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Goodyear Sears Roebuck, American Telephone, American Water Works Westinghouse Kennecott Schenley American Woolen and Standard Oil (NJ)

LOVE'S PERILOUS PATH

By ADELE GARRISON

"HELLO! Dr. Barnard? Dr. Twitchell speaking. Can you give me two minutes? Thank you, but I won't need that long."

Once more we were listening to a one-sided telephone conversation.

But this time it was a brief one. Dr. Twitchell made an appointment with the young plastic surgeon of whom he had spoken to my father, said he would be at the other's office in an hour, and hung up the receiver.

Sounded Very Disgusted

"He sounded very disgusted with life as he is living it," he said, as he turned from the telephone. "I am sure he will jump at the chance to get away."

"I hope so," my father answered. "But even if he isn't as enthusiastic as you think he will be, bring him down to the hideaway anyway."

"I'll do that," the elderly physician agreed. "If you talk to him, he surely will accept your offer."

He seated himself again, and my father sent a smiling "Thank you," in his direction before continuing the startling conversation which he had permitted to be interrupted by Dr. Twitchell's telephoning.

"In the present tensity of relations everywhere," my father said, "we have to proceed with the utmost care. Until we have proof, and the opportunity to act on the proof, we cannot even hint at our suspicions.

"Therefore this expedition is supposed to be an innocuous diplomatic one, a 'Good Neighbor' sort of thing, with the ostensible object of improving trade relations between the United States and this particular South American country.

Will Be Medical Officer

"As I said, the plastic surgeon will not have his own identity, but will act as the medical officer of the expedition, and Jack, whose special knowledge is needed to discover just what experiments are being carried on, is going to be — ostensibly — a lesser career diplomat, familiar with the proper way of handling a teacup but not knowing the difference between an electron and a potato."

His smile at Jack gave Dicky courage to say softly: "Nice going, old boy. Good hunting!"

Jack flashed a wry smile back at him, and then my father was speaking again insistently.

"That is the reason," my father went on, "why Jack and Katharine have come back here, and why Katharine is remaining here. She begged hard to go, and she may, later, if Jack is detained down there for any appreciable time. But just now we must keep the expedition as small as possible, and Katharine, like a good soldier, has yielded to that necessity."

"It seems almost providential," my father digressed, "that she is to be in New York for a time, now that this grave emergency concerning Mary confronts us."

"It is a direct act of God!" Philip Veritzen said melodramatically, and I thanked my particular little joss that one facet of Mary's problem had been solved. Her father-in-law was no longer nursing malevolence toward her. Instead, her problems were once more his, and I knew that all of his resourcefulness and his wealth would be dedicated to saving her.

"And now, Phillip," my father went on. "I come to something which concerns you, or, rather, Olga.

"What is her concern, is mine also," Olga's husband said, and the sincerity in his voice redeemed what I knew Dicky was dubbing "another 'ham' line of old Phil's."

"We all know that, Phillip," my father assured him, "and that is why I think it best to outline the facts to you before I contact Olga.

"In the first place," he went on, "we all know that Transvania, geographically, racially, and politically is now the new 'powder keg of the Balkans.'

"Transvania is now in the hands of warring factions," he went on. "Those who are in there can't get out, and only certain favored persons can get in. But one thing we know. The Nazis count on making it the first wedge in their renewed attempt for world power. And the person who is their chief tool is now in the South American country to which our expedition is going."

Comprehension flashed into Philip Veritzen's eyes.

"You mean Otto?" he said. "Olga's son?"
